

Free Wills and Estate Planning Talk Sponsored by Lions Club Oct 27.

The Lions Club invites the public to its Speaker Night at the Community Center on Tuesday, Oct 27 at 7 PM featuring Cedar Key Lions Past President and Attorney, Michael Day.

Come hear Cedar Key resident and attorney Mike Day present a talk on "Wills - Living and otherwise and thoughts on basic estate planning and asset protection."

Without proper planning, a large portion of your estate could end up being taxed by the government or go to unintended heirs, rather than your loved ones or intended charities. Also, it is important to understand your choices available for "life support" (or not) in the final stages of your life.

That's why, in these troubled economic times, wills and estate planning take on a new urgency and importance as families face the uncertainties of the future.

Followed by a Question and Answer period, this will be an evening packed with information and sound, practical advice on wills and estate planning strategies you can use to make sure your estate is protected from government taxation and is distributed the way you want it to be.
